The New GOP Presidential Frontier

Conservative women find they can relate to Bachmann, Palin

Dover, N.H.

They don't like identity politics and aren't crazy about the word "feminist." But a lot of conservative women here can't help but rejoice that they may have a couple of tough-talking, tea-drinking, devoted mothers to choose from in the Republican primary.

Rep. Michele Bachmann of Minnesota is on the verge of announcing her intentions, and former vice presidential nominee Sarah Palin is contemplating a bid for president. If either runs, it would be the first time since Elizabeth Dole's bid in 1999 that a viable female candidate has sought the Republican nomination for president.

They have energized conservative women who four years ago were deeply uncomfortable with Hillary Rodham Clinton, but who see in Bachmann and Palin the kind of family-focused, overtly spiritual candidate whose lifestyle and values seem to mirror their own.

The inclusion of Palin and Bachmann in the mix of candidates caps a blockbuster year in which women were credited with helping the GOP retake control of the House.

Bachmann is not considered a front-runner for the nomination. But Sarah Palin, above, and Michele Bachmann, below, have conservative women rejoicing that they may have two family-focused and overtly Christian candidates to choose from.

Palin Stands by Her Paul Revere Story

Sarah Palin insisted Sunday that history was on her side when she claimed that Paul Revere's famous ride was intended to warn both British soldiers and Revere's fellow colonists. "You realize that you messed up about Paul Revere, don't you?" "Fox News Sunday" anchor Chris Wallace asked Palin. "I didn't mess up," Palin said. "Part of his ride was to warn the British that were already there. That, hey, you're not going to succeed. ... You are not going to beat our own well-armed persons, individual, private militia that we have. He did warn the British." (AP)

"Who runs the households of America? Women do. Why not the country?"

— ANDREA QUIMETTE, WHO ATTENDED A GOP PICNIC THAT FEATURED MICHELE BACHMANN AS THE KEYNOTE SPEAKER.

she has amassed a significant war chest — about $3 million as of March 31 — that virtually assures she will have staying power leading up to the primaries next spring. Palin, though, would no doubt take over the spotlight if she decided to jump into the race. She became a model for a new kind of conservative woman leader when she stormed onto the national stage in 2008, with her unapologetic attitude and an infant on her hip.

Palin and Bachmann share key characteristics, including their popularity in tea party circles, their overtly Christian rhetoric and their sharp tongues. They also share a groomed attractiveness that Republican voters like, says Kellyanne Conway, a GOP pollster, because it suggests that the candidates are proud of their femininity.

"They look like the homecoming queens, but they talk like Ronald Reagan. Who wouldn't want that combination?" Conway said. SANDHYA SOMASHEKHAR (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Drugs Boost Melanoma Survival

Chicago

They're not cures, but two novel drugs produced unprecedented gains in survival in separate studies of people with melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer, doctors reported Sunday.

In one study, an experimental drug showed so much benefit so quickly in people with advanced disease that those getting a comparison drug were allowed to switch after just a few months.

The drug, vemurafenib, targets a gene mutation found in about half of all melanomas. The drug is being developed by Genentech and Plexxikon Inc..

The second study tested Bristol-Myers Squibb Co.'s Yervoy, a just-approved medicine for newly diagnosed melanoma patients, and found it nearly doubled the number who survived at least three years.

"Melanoma has just seen a renaissance of new agents," and more are being tested, said Dr. Allen Lichter, chief executive of the American Society of Clinical Oncology.

The new studies were presented Sunday in Chicago and published online by the New England Journal of Medicine.

"This is really an unprecedented time of celebration for our patients," said Dr. Lynn Schuchter, of the University of Pennsylvania's Abramson Cancer Center. The new drugs are not by themselves cures, but "the future is going to be to build upon the success" by testing combinations of these newer drugs, she said.

Melanoma is on the rise, and only two drugs had been approved to treat it, with limited effectiveness, until Yervoy, an immune-system therapy, won approval in March. MARILYNN MARCHIONE (AP)

Sprouts Suspected in Outbreak

Officials investigate farm in Germany over E. coli flare-up

Hamburg, Germany

The terrifying E. coli outbreak in Europe appears to have been caused by vegetable sprouts grown in Germany, an agriculture official said Sunday as the toll climbed to at least 22 dead and more than 2,200 sickened.

Preliminary tests found that bean sprouts and other sprout varieties from an organic farm in the Uelzen area, between Hamburg and Hannover, could be connected to infected people in five German states, Lower Saxony Agriculture Minister Gert Lindemann said.

"There were more and more indications in the last few hours that put the focus on this farm," Lindemann said.

Sprouting Danger

Sprouts have been implicated in previous E. coli outbreaks, particularly one in 1996 in Japan, where tainted radish sprouts killed 12 people and reportedly sickened more than 12,000 others. E. coli can be found in feces and can spread to produce through sloppy bathroom habits among farm workers and through animal waste in fields and irrigation water. As for how the European sprouts became contaminated, a German official noted that they are grown with steam at 100 F in barrels, an ideal environment for bacteria to multiply. It is possible that the water had been contaminated. Still, the farm had not used any manure, which can cause E. coli outbreaks, he said. (AP)

Definitive test results should be available Monday, he said.

Many restaurants involved in the outbreak had received deliveries of the sprouts, which are often used in salads, Lindemann spokesman Gert Hahne said.

As officials tried to pinpoint the source of the unusually lethal outbreak, suspicion fell on lettuce, cucumbers and tomatoes, perhaps from Spain. Spanish farmers complained that the accusations were having a devastating financial effect.

The farm was shut down Sunday and all of its produce was recalled, including herbs, fruits, flowers and potatoes. He said 18 sprout mixtures from the farm were under suspicion,

"As long as the cause of the E. coli outbreak has not been found, there'll be no more vegetables or fruit in our house."

including sprouts of mung beans, broccoli, and radishes.

The outbreak has been blamed on a highly aggressive, "super-toxic" strain of E. coli. Ten other European nations and the U.S. have also reported victims.

The crisis is the deadliest known E. coli outbreak in modern history, and more than 627 people have developed a rare, serious complication that can cause kidney failure. (AP)

Protesters Brawl on Syria-Israel Frontier

Majdal Shams, Golan Heights

Israeli troops on Sunday battled hundreds of pro-Palestinian protesters who tried to burst across Syria's frontier with the Golan Heights, killing a reported 20 people and wounding scores more in the second outbreak of deadly violence in the border area in less than a month.

The clashes, marking the anniversary of the Arab defeat in the 1967 Mideast war, drew Israeli accusations that Syria was orchestrating the violence to shift attention away from a bloody crackdown on opposition protests at home.

Rights groups say President Bashar Assad's forces killed at least 25 people in Syria over the weekend. There was no Syrian comment on why the protesters were allowed to storm the border. (AP)

Looking for Answers Ahead of Runoff in Peru

AN INDIGENOUS WOMAN STUDIES polling booth information in Ollantaytambo, Peru, before voting Sunday in the country's presidential runoff. The election pits Keiko Fujimori, 36, who is the daughter of an ex-president imprisoned for rights abuses and corruption, against Lt. Col. Ollanta Humala, 48, a leftist who has spooked investors by promising the poor a greater share of the Andean nation's mineral wealth. Humala narrowly lost the 2006 presidential election to Alan Garcia.

There are myriad ways to keep rental car costs down if you know where to look for deals and how to avoid extra fees.

Deals on Wheels

Five ways to save on car rentals in time for summer driving season

Motorists, start your engines: Summer driving season has begun. You just may need to put in a little extra effort this year to keep it from being a budget-buster. It's not surprising that many families are rethinking their vacation plans and driving less as gasoline prices linger within striking distance of $4 a gallon. But for those who are planning to rent a car this summer, there are plenty of ways to keep costs down by going beyond comparison shopping and seeking out small fuel-efficient cars. DAVE CARPENTER (AP)

Buy Your Own Gas

Unpredictably high gas prices may tempt you to consider the rental car company's offer to prepay for a whole tank of gas. Think twice. Yes, it's convenient and the prices they offer generally will be less than the current price at the pumps. But many drivers end up paying more in the end because they don't use the full amount they paid for in advance. Gas prices have been coming down a bit recently from their peaks, providing another reason to hold off.

Get Loyal

Joining a rental car agency's loyalty program can give you access to special deals and promotions, and save you time. It will speed you through lines or allow you to skip them altogether, sometimes enabling you to go straight to the car. Consider it even if you're not a frequent traveler, just a once-a-year vacation renter, advises Greg McBride, senior financial analyst for Bankrate.com.

ISTOCK PHOTO

Just be sure to return the car with a full tank or you can be socked with even higher costs. Take note of gas stations near the airport or wherever you'll be returning the car so you can refuel. The American Automobile Association (Aaa.com) has an app that shows nearby gas station prices.

Seek Online Offers

Sites such as Rentalcarmomma.com, Rentalcars.com, Rentalcodes.com and Rentalcarchoices.com have coupons that provide discounts of 5 percent or 10 percent off daily car rentals; 10 percent to 20 percent off weekly rentals; or a third day free when renting for two weekend days. Some coupons can be applied to already discounted prices. If you'll be relying on a rental agency, check to see whether it has a presence on Facebook or Twitter for promotional offers.

Avoid Unnecessary Insurance

Drivers with auto insurance probably have adequate coverage — if not through their policy, then through the credit card they're charging the rental tab to. If you're already an insured driver, you can resist the inevitable pitch at the rental counter that's designed to plant enough doubt to scare you into buying their coverage. Call your auto insurer and credit card issuer and ask whether you are covered for collisions and liability.

Don't Stop Shopping

Book your rental car in advance to ensure you get the vehicle type you want at a decent price. But as the travel date approaches continue to shop on rental agencies' websites and those of travel sites such as Expedia, Orbitz and Travelocity. If they have a lot of cars and no one's renting the price will come down as the date nears.

Fighting may ease with Saleh gone, but Yemen's future remains uncertain

San'a, Yemen

The departure of Yemen's battle-wounded president for treatment in Saudi Arabia set off wild street celebrations Sunday in the capital where crowds danced, sang and slaughtered cows in hopes that this spelled a victorious end to a more than three-month campaign to oust their leader.

Behind the festive atmosphere, many feared Ali Abdullah Saleh, a masterful politician who has led for nearly 33 years, will return — or leave the country in ruins if he can't. Hanging in the balance was a country that even before the latest tumult was beset by deep poverty, tribal conflict and violence by an active al-Qaeda franchise with international reach.

Saleh, who was taken to a military hospital in the Saudi capital, Riyadh, underwent surgery to remove wood that splintered from a mosque pulpit when his compound was hit by rockets on Friday, medical officials said.

The stunning rocket attack, which the government first blamed on tribal fighters who in recent weeks turned against the president and later on al-Qaeda, killed 11 bodyguards and seriously injured five senior officials worshipping alongside Saleh.

While Saleh is away, Vice President Abed Rabbo Mansour Hadi is acting as temporary head of state, said the deputy information minister, Abdu al-Janadi.

"Saleh will come back. Saleh is in good health, and he may give up the authority one day, but it has to be in a constitutional way," al-Janadi said. "Calm has returned. Coups have failed."

Experts questioned whether a return is possible. Saleh's injuries and his treatment abroad provide him with what could turn out to be a face-saving solution to exit power.

Protesters in San'a, Yemen, cheer Sunday for the departure of President Ali Abdullah Saleh, who left for medical treatment in Saudi Arabia.

"Our challenge now is to remove the rest of the regime. If he returns, it will be a disaster."

— MOUFID AL-MUTAIRI, 30, A YEMENI TEACHER, SPEAKING ABOUT THE GOAL OF THE PROTEST MOVEMENT NOW THAT PRESIDENT ALI ABDULLAH SALEH HAS LEFT THE COUNTRY.

"This is exactly what needed to happen," said Christopher Boucek, a Yemen expert with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. "He needed to leave in order to get past this political deadlock that has been cursing Yemen for the past few months."

His sudden departure raised many questions, including whether his Saudi hosts would bless his return. The Saudis have backed Saleh and cooperated over the years in confronting al-Qaeda and other threats, but they are now among those pressing him resign. Saudi Arabia is eager to contain the unrest on its doorstep.

Yemen's unrest began as a peaceful movement that the government at times used brutal force to try to suppress, killing at least 166 people, according to Human Rights Watch. It transformed in the past two weeks into armed conflict after the president's forces attacked the home of a key tribal leader. The fighting turned the streets of San'a into a war zone.

In an attempt to cool the situation, the vice president offered to pull regime forces back from where they've battled fighters loyal to Sheik Sadeq al-Ahmar, who heads Yemen's most powerful tribal confederation.

Al-Ahmar said in a statement he agreed to the deal, which requires his forces to leave the streets they seized starting Monday. (AP)

Imminent Dangers

Yemen has been inching closer to economic collapse, and with the sudden departure of President Ali Abdullah Saleh, several destabilizing factors further threaten the small Gulf nation.

Al-Qaeda

Al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula has an estimated 300 hard-core members hiding in Yemen's mountains, plotting attacks on targets in Europe and the U.S. while enjoying the protection of tribal chiefs at odds with President Ali Abdullah Saleh. Militants would likely benefit from more chaos in Yemen, gaining more freedom to plot attacks without being disrupted by Saleh's U.S.-trained counterterrorism forces.

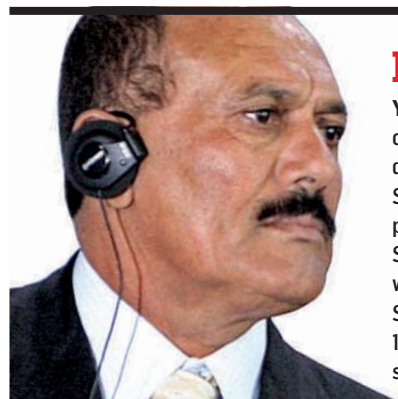

Wanted Man

Yemen is home to U.S.-born Muslim cleric Anwar al-Awlaki, who the U.S. has put on a kill-or-capture list. Washington says he is a top al-Qaeda operative and inspired attacks on the U.S., including the 2009 shooting at a military base in Fort Hood, Texas, that killed 13 people.

Civil War

Yemen has a secessionist movement in the south that has steadily gained strength in recent years, raising the specter of the nation's breaking into two parts or a civil war to prevent that from happening. The north is home to rebellious Shiites who the government insists are backed by Iran. (AP)

Path of Determination

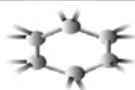

Yemeni President Ali Abdullah Saleh was born into a tribe allied with the al-Ahmar clan, which then ruled a tribal confederacy in northern Yemen. His website gives his birth date as March 21, 1946, but many in Yemen say he was born four years earlier. Regardless, Saleh caught the eye of North Yemen's president, Ahmed bin Hussein al-Ghashmi, who appointed him military chief in Taiz. A bomb killed al-Ghashmi in June 1978, and soon after, Saleh was president and head of the armed forces of North Yemen. Among his first acts was to order the execution of 30 officers convicted of conspiring to kill al-Ghashmi. In 1990, Saleh made his boldest political move: negotiating unity with the Marxist south. On May 22, 1990, he raised the flag of the Republic of Yemen. He is believed to have been grooming his son Ahmed to succeed him, one of the reasons that opposition fanned against him. (AP)

Metro's Main Designer

Creator of transit system's iconic map tasked with updating it

Washington

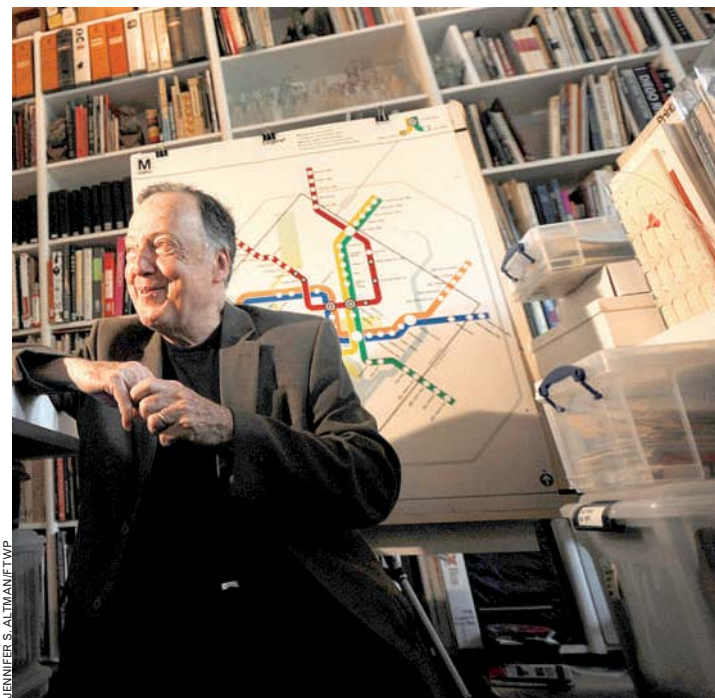

More than three decades ago, Lance Wyman designed the Metro map's iconic interlocking colored lines, which have become the symbol of the transit system for millions of Washington commuters and tourists. Now he's been hired to give it a makeover.

It is a challenge for the 73-year-old graphic designer. He has to find a way to add the new rail line to Dulles International Airport and integrate other changes to the map without ruining the classic, clean look.

"I get nervous," Wyman said when he considered everything he's been asked to accomplish. "We did that original one almost 40 years ago. It is amazing that it stuck."

In the world of graphic arts, Wyman is a rock star. He made his reputation after he designed the bold typeface and geometric logo for the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City. He's also made his mark on Washington, having done designs for many well-known spots.

He created icons for museums and monuments in D.C. that were once used on map kiosks and banners on the Mall. His signs to identify animals still adorn the elephant, ape and small-mammal house at the National Zoo. A logo for the old Walter E. Washington Convention Center was his, as was an icon for some reading rooms at the Library of Congress. But none of his designs has withstood time as well as his original Metro map.

Lance Wyman, who designed Metro's map, also has made signs for the National Zoo.

"We did that original one almost 40 years ago. It is amazing that it stuck."

— LANCE WYMAN, METRO MAP DESIGNER

Wyman faces a list of challenges. He has to add the new rail line to Dulles, include trains along the Red Line that end at Grosvenor, squeeze in a future split of the Blue Line and deal with some station names that have become long and cumbersome.

Metro officials expect to present Wyman's new map design to the public this fall.

Wyman said he wants to make sure the Metro map is usable in every shape and form. The map has to work on mobile devices and online, as well as in poster-size displays at Metro stations.

"The map has spirit," he said. "It has to hang together like a good piece of music. It's got life, a beat with colors and station stops. There's a sense of rhythm. It has a solidity to it that's unique to Washington. I don't want to lose the good music." DANA HEDGPETH (THE WASHINGTON POST)

What should happen to people who dance at the Jefferson Memorial?

"Nothing. I think they should be able to dance if they want to. But I would not want to."

D.C. Set for New Parking Meters

DDOT will roll out pay-by-phone system citywide this summer

Washington

The D.C. Department of Transportation has selected ParkMobile to provide its new pay-by-phone parking meter system.

Beginning in July, D.C. plans to launch a new citywide program with the company to allow drivers to use their mobile phones to pay for parking at metered spaces.

A competitor in a pilot program for the service, Verrus Mobile Technologies, discontinued its service this week.

ParkMobile already provides pay-by-phone service near Georgetown Hospital, in Foggy Bottom and around Nationals Park.

Once the program expands citywide, there will be a fee for each transaction. Users will be charged an additional 30 to 35 cents per transaction.

The fee goes to ParkMobile to make the service free for the city. (AP)

AUTO RACING

Keselowski Outduels Earnhardt for Victory

Dale Earnhardt Jr. was charging again, hoping that this time he'd be on top of a frantic late fuel-mileage battle. Leader Brad Keselowski stretched his fuel perfectly, dashing Earnhardt's hopes of snapping his 106-race winless streak while ending his own 75-loss streak in the STP 400 in Kansas City, Kan. (AP)

PRO BASEBALL

Pujols Hits Walk-Off

Albert Pujols hit a game-ending homer in extra innings for the second straight day, beating the Chicago Cubs with a leadoff shot in the 10th inning of the St. Louis Cardinals' 3-2 victory on Sunday. Pujols hammered a fastball from Rodrigo Lopez (0-1) an estimated 446 feet to left for his 10th career game-ending homer. (AP)

Advantage: NADAL

Spaniard again bests Federer at the French in a one-sided rivalry

Tennis

Regardless of the setting or the surface, Rafael Nadal confounds Roger Federer the way no other man can.

Put the two greats of the game on opposite ends of a court in a Grand Slam final — particularly at Roland Garros, on the red clay that Nadal rules — and the one-sided nature of the rivalry grows even more pronounced.

Better Than Borg

With a 45-1 record at the French Open, it's hard to argue against Rafael Nadal over Bjorn Borg on clay. (AP)

STATISTICS	BORG	NADAL
App. to Six Titles	8	7
Match W-L	49-2	45-1
Sets Won	143-25	134-13
Five-Set Wins	5	1
Straight-Set Wins	35	36
Top 10 Wins	8	11

Grinding along the baseline, using every inch of his wingspan to extend points, whipping fearsome forehands this way and that, Nadal flummoxed Federer yet again Sunday in a riveting, highlight-filled match, beating him 7-5, 7-6 (3), 5-7, 6-1 for a record-tying sixth French Open championship and 10th major title overall.

"He plays better against the better ones, and that's what he showed today," said Federer, owner of 16 Grand Slam trophies. "He's a great champion, on clay, especially."

There's no question that Nadal is as good as it gets in Paris — 45-1 for his career, and the same number of titles there as Bjorn Borg — but the Spaniard already also has shown that he is much more than the king of clay. And Sunday's victory only will raise more questions about whether Federer truly deserves to be called the "greatest of all time" if he is not even the "greatest of right now."

Nadal leads their head-to-head series 17-8. That includes a 6-2 advantage in Grand Slam finals and a 5-0 edge at the French Open (in the 2005 semifinals, and the 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2011 finals).

He's rapidly gaining on Federer. Nadal turned 25 Friday, making him about six months younger than Federer was when the Swiss star collected his 10th major title.

This was the first Grand Slam final contested by two men who already completed career Grand Slams — at least one title from each major tournament — and Nadal and Federer put on a worthy show, more than 3½ hours chock-full of lengthy exchanges, brilliant defense, sublime shotmaking, and some dizzying shifts of momentum.

"A big occasion," said the third-seeded Federer, who is 14-1 in Grand Slam finals against any other opponent. "I was aware of it." (AP)

Nadal vs. Federer: The Highlights

WIMBLEDON, 2007

Federer tied Bjorn Borg with five Wimbledon titles in a classic 7-6 (9-7), 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 2-6, 6-2 victory over Nadal.

WIMBLEDON, 2008

A five-hour marathon that is called the greatest match ever by some went to Nadal, 6-4, 6-4, 6-7 (7-5), 6-7 (10-8), 9-7.

AUSSIE OPEN, 2009

Nadal's 7-5, 3-6, 7-6 (3), 3-6, 6-2 victory literally sent Federer to tears after a grueling four-hour 22-minute title match.

Deep Draft Bodes Well for the Nationals

6th pick offers team a shot at one of the best available players

The Nationals

The Nationals' position in the draft has changed this season, but their luck has not. For the past two years, they owned the first pick in the draft, two seasons that happened to bring Stephen Strasburg and Bryce Harper. Two once-in-a-generation talents fell into their possession in consecutive seasons. "It's hard to have a more impactful draft than with those specific No. 1 picks," General Manager Mike Rizzo said.

On Monday night, the draft will start at 7 p.m. and the Nationals, for the first time since 2008, will wait. They will pick sixth, with two more picks at 23 and 34, compensation for losing Adam Dunn in free agency. And, wouldn't you know it, this is a perfect season to pick sixth with two additional early choices.

The consensus around baseball suggests this year's draft is deep, particularly with hard-throwing pitchers. Rizzo called it the best draft he's seen in at least six years. Their compensatory picks, late in the first round and the first pick of the "sandwich" round, could produce a quality of player typically taken in the middle of the first round.

The general consensus also brings more good news for the Nationals. There are six players regarded as the elite tier, with little gap in talent between them. The Nationals, then, are in position to choose one of the best players in the country with their first choice.

"There's six clear-cut top guys in this draft," said Jim Callis, a draft expert at Baseball America. "In a lot of ways, I think it's a really easy decision for the Nationals. Whoever is left is their pick. I don't think

Head of the MLB Draft Class

UCLA pitchers Gerrit Cole, left, and Trevor Bauer head a draft class heavy on college-pitching prospects. Cole is considered the likely No. 1 overall pick, and Bauer draws comparisons to Cy Young winner Tim Lincecum.

Virginia ace Danny Hultzen, a former star at St. Albans in D.C., throws a fastball in the low to mid-90s and has good movement on his off-speed pitches. The junior showed no interest in going pro out of high school but should be ready now.

Rice third baseman Anthony Rendon was the national freshman of the year two years ago and hit .327 with 20 doubles and six homers this year. But a right shoulder strain has limited him to DH duties for much of this season.

Oklahoma high school pitcher Dylan Bundy may have the best arm of any hurler in the draft, but he has also hinted it will take a Stephen Strasburg-esque signing bonus to lure him away from the college game.

Kansas high school outfielder Bubba Starling might be the best athlete in the draft, a star in basketball and football, too. He has super agent Scott Boras' backing and a scholarship offer to play quarterback at Nebraska. (AP/TWP) there's a ton separating those six. They theoretically could get the best player in the draft."

As Rizzo built a reputation as a savvy scouting director with the Arizona Diamondbacks, he showed a strong preference for college pitching. This draft is rife with quality college pitchers, but the breakdown of the draft may force the Nationals to look elsewhere, perhaps at high school star Bubba Starling.

The Nationals don't have their choice of any player in the country this year, but they again find themselves on draft day in just the right spot. ADAM KILGORE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

NHL Playoffs

The Boston Bruins couldn't have enjoyed the scenery late Saturday night while their team bus crawled through the raucous street party that consumed downtown Vancouver after the Canucks moved halfway to their first NHL title.

Maybe the Stanley Cup finals' moving east will finally give the Bruins something to celebrate.

With Game 3 looming Monday night at TD Garden, the Bruins realize the jam they brought back from Canada isn't sweet.

Only four teams have rallied from an 0-2 finals deficit in 46 tries. Boston must win four of the next five games to beat the Canucks, the NHL's best regular-season team and the winner of seven of their past eight playoff games. (AP)

Booze Clues

Awards Season

Whether Washington is a great restaurant town or not (and that debate is too long for this space), we do have our own annual restaurant awards: the RAMMYs, which will be given out at a gala on June 26.

By Fiona Zublin

From now till then, the masses can sample cocktails from the five restaurants nominated for Mixology/Beverage Program of the Year — and whenever you order one, you can fill out a card to be entered in a drawing to win tickets to the gala.

The cocktails hail from Bourbon Steak (2800 Pennsylvania Ave. NW), Church Key (1337 14th St. NW), Estadio (1520 14th St. NW), Tabard Inn (1739 N St. NW) and Founding Farmers (1924 Pennsylvania Ave. NW).

Founding Farmers' nominee has an unwieldy name — Citros Gengibre ($12) — but it's the perfect summer cocktail. Fruity summer drinks are usually a mash of various juices and hard liquor that just taste like sorority party jungle juice, but bartender Jon Arroyo has mixed ginger beer with grapefruit bitters, lemon, mint and cherry brandy for a drink with defined flavors. Oh, and tequila. Oh, yes, there is tequila.

Church Key's drink is vastly different but similarly summery: The Alewife ($11) is a miraculous concoction that mimics the taste of Belgian beer using only honey, egg white, lemon, gin and a house-made tincture of coriander, black pepper and citrus.

The winner of the complimentary RAMMY tickets will be chosen on June 20.

Regeneration

MTV is in the middle of a new renaissance with hits 'Teen Mom' and 'Jersey Shore'

Television

Over the years, one of the last things you'd see on the youth-obsessed MTV was a parent.

Now moms and dads aren't unusual sights, even on the twin totems to wild behavior and its consequences — "Jersey Shore" and "Teen Mom" — that are key to the network's latest resurgence. Many young viewers have no prob-

Hindsight

'Imma Let You Finish, But ...'

A key moment for MTV came at the 2009 Video Music Awards when Kanye West questioned Taylor Swift's award-worthiness onstage, an incident that exploded through social media. MTV had been grappling with how to deal with social media and came to see it as a means rather than an end: Social media can be a boon if it has the content people want to talk about. (AP) lem with parents' being an active part of their lives and expect their presence on television.

Understanding such generational nuances is crucial to MTV, which has the brutal task of reinventing itself every five or six years to appeal to a new group of 12- to 24-year-olds. Their viewers eventually grow up. MTV never can.

The latest reinvention has brought MTV its best ratings in five years. The third season of "Jersey Shore" was the network's top-rated show ever, and the second season of "Teen Mom" similarly zoomed up the charts. The challenge now is figuring out how to build on that success and know when to be ready for the next reinvention.

This spring, MTV has steered in a surprisingly traditional direction by debuting a remake of the "Teen Wolf" series on Sunday and bringing back "Beavis and Butt-head" later this year. It has also created its own weight-loss series for teens and plans to launch two "Jersey Shore" spin-offs.

MTV viewers "want more from us," says Van Toffler, president of MTV Networks Music/Films/Logo Group. "They expect more."

Toffler, who has been at MTV since 1986, and newly appointed network president Stephen Friedman, who's been there since 1998, have survived MTV's ups and downs. "When you get a little bit scared," Toffler said, "you know something might work." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

1 With a Side of Pride

Though it's not as exciting as braving restaurant week, Taste of Pride has the advantage of combining charity, which we love, with eating all the food, which we love the most. When you buy dinner at a participating restaurant, a portion of the proceeds go to support Capital Pride. The participating eateries are concentrated in mid-city D.C. and in Arlington. Various locations, through Sun., Capitalpride.org.

2 Play It Again

The Shakespeare Theatre may be named after the most famous playwright who ever lived, but it has a soft spot for the lesser-known playwrights of history, too. Thus the Rediscovery Reading series, where artistic director Michael Kahn chooses plays nobody's ever heard of for new, if one-night-only, life. Tonight's selection: "Don't Play With Love" by Alfred de Musset, who is mostly famous for having an affair with writer George Sand. Shakespeare Theatre, 450 7th St. NW, Mon., 7:30 p.m., free, reservations required; 202-547-1122, Shakespearetheatre.org. (Gallery Place)

3 Don't Mess With POTUS

Harrison Ford pioneered the idea of the archaeologist superhero, but it's perhaps even more impressive that he made the president-superhero believable. Ford's portrayal of a president saving his family from hijackers in "Air Force One" is pretty badass — but in real life, we'll take the wonks we have, thanks. The film will screen outdoors in Crystal City tonight. 1851 S. Bell St., Arlington; Mon., sunset, free; Crystalcity.org. (Crystal City)

Ballad of Bobby Fischer

A documentary traces the catalysts of the world chess master

Documentary

HBO 9:00 Genius, fame and paranoia loom large in the thoughtful and entirely captivating documentary "Bobby Fischer Against the World" (9 p.m., HBO).

A brilliant and focused child of a single mother with a politically radical background, Brooklyn-born Bobby Fischer would seem an unlikely candidate for international fame. His single-minded dedication to the game of chess began early, and by age 8 Fischer was beating much older players, sometimes challenging dozens of them at a time. The film offers a wealth of footage of the young Fischer, a curiosity for the media long before his defeat of Russian chess master Boris Spassky at the 1972 championship made him a worldwide hero.

Chess master Bobby Fischer calculates his next move against Boris Spassky in 1972.

"Fischer" does a great job of exploring the ancient game of chess and its insular society of world-class champions. It also recalls the emphasis the Soviet Union put on the game as part of its propaganda efforts.

The film's title has more than a double meaning, spending its final half documenting Fischer's descent into paranoia, his renunciation of his U.S. citizenship, his celebration of the 9/11 attacks and his obsessive anti-Semitism.

The mere effort of describing Fischer's rise and fall implies some causal link between his unique gift and his pathetic self-imposed exile. But making sense of his madness, or anyone's mental illness, remains beyond the powers of any film, even a movie as spellbinding as "Bobby Fischer Against the World." KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Chris Mayo, Amy Seager

Chris, 24, is a business analyst. Amy, 24, is an assistant teacher for D.C. Public Schools. They live in Silver Spring.

THE MAIN EVENT: On June 21, they'll wed in Jamaica with just two guests: Amy's sister and her husband. The reception will take place a few weeks later in upstate New York.

HOW THEY MET: In their high school cafeteria when they were both 15. "I gave her lunch money, and she ate half my chicken sandwich anyways," Chris says.

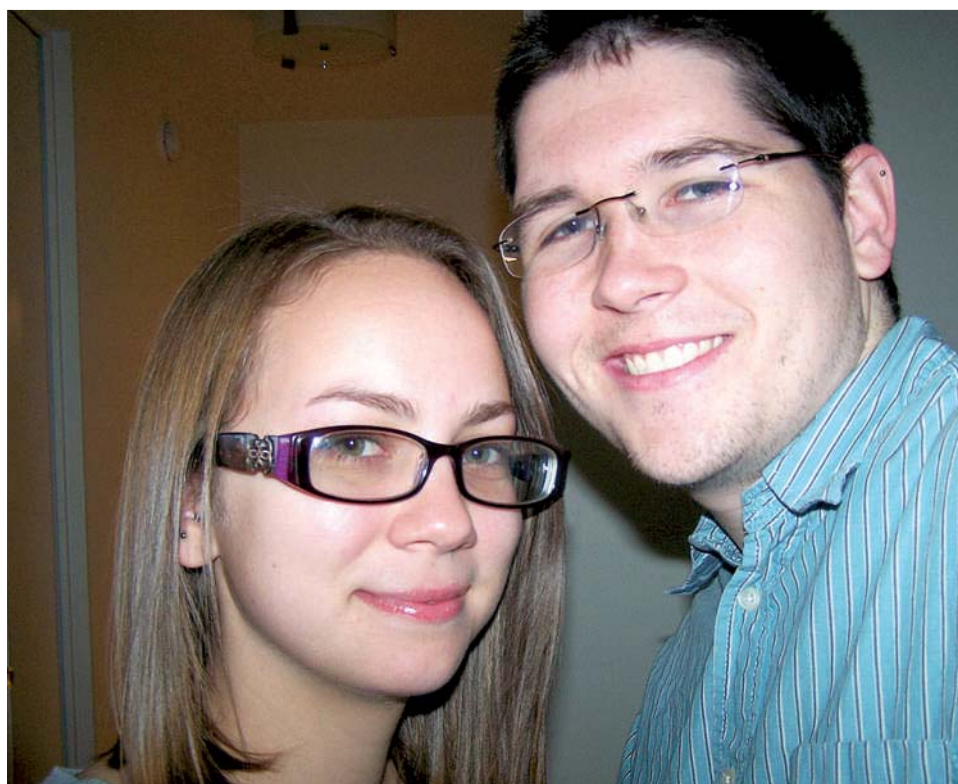

FIRST DATE: They first hung out solo to do English homework. For their first date, they saw the 2004 rom-com "The Prince and Me."

HOW HE PROPOSED: In their living room. "I was trying to start a fight about when he would finally propose." Then he did. "It all turned to a blur," Amy says.

THEIR SONG: Jack Johnson's "Better Together." Their favors, napkins and chocolates all say, "Amy & Chris Better Together."

PET NAMES: "He is 'Huniehound' and I am 'SugarPup,'" Amy says. "I call her 'Babycakes' and she calls me 'Jackass,'" Chris says.

WHEN HE KNEW: "When I was skipping seventh period to go to guitar class with her."

"I GAVE HER LUNCH MONEY, AND SHE ATE HALF MY CHICKEN SANDWICH ANYWAYS."

— CHRIS MAYO

Forest Allread, Athena Kramarius

Forest, 27, is an artist and art instructor. Athena, 27, is an interior designer. They live in Alexandria.

THE MAIN EVENT: June 11 at the Asateague Island National Seashore. They'll eat blue crabs, camp ocean-side and get married barefoot while their friends sit on Indian blankets.

HOW THEY MET: In high school art class.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "I thought, 'This guy must have so many different personalities.' He was a skater, a lacrosse player, a soccer player and an art kid. I was so curious to see what more was going on in that head."

FIRST DATE: Taco Bell. "Nachos BellGrande, chicken, no beef, no beans," Athena says.

HOW HE PROPOSED: In bed, with Shakespeare's sonnet 116, which begins, "Let me not to the marriage of true minds admit impediments."

MOST-HATED CLOTHING ITEM: "His 'grandpa pants' — pleated olive Dockers two sizes too big." "When I wear them, I swear I'm losing weight," Forest says.

THEIR SONG: Feist's "Mushaboom," to which they'll walk down the "aisle" after they're married.

MMM, CAKE: Instead, they're having a "Smoresgasbord" — s'mores-flavored brownie pies, whoopie pies, cupcakes and s'mores.

WITH INFINITE FUNDS: Athena would buy 100 giant Gypsy pillows; Forest would hire a mariachi band.

Renzo Carlin, Jess Landers

Renzo, 29, is an architect. Jess, 26, is an admissions director at the Art Institute of Washington. They live on Capitol Hill.

THE MAIN EVENT: June 11, on the beach in Maryland. "We are having a hospital chaplain officiate," Jess says. "We chose her because it has to take a strong person with a huge heart to do that job."

HOW THEY MET: Lifeguard training in Falls Church. "We were paired to practice saving each other. When it was her turn, we got into an argument because I kept purposely sinking to the bottom of the pool."

FIRST DATE: Renzo says it was a bar in Georgetown. They were underage, so Jess brought her older sister and Renzo brought an older friend. Jess says their first date was a fair in the parking lot of Landmark Mall.

HOW HE PROPOSED: In Spanish, in front of her friends, at the end of a four-day hike to Machu Picchu in Peru.

MOST-HATED CLOTHING ITEM: His shirt with a picture of a married couple on it and the words "Game Over." THEIR SONG: David Gray's "This Year's Love."

PET NAMES: He's "Pickle" or "Sugar-pants" and she's "Jelly Bean."

Horoscope

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You know which moments really count, and which are just filler — and you can help determine which is which.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Someone you face competitively on a day-to-day basis may come to you with an offer of a compromise that is actually quite attractive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Any secret you try to keep is likely to backfire on you before you know it, so try to keep everything aboveboard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Someone you have looked up to for some time may disappoint you before the day is out, but you mustn't take this too personally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can do much to relieve tensions between parties engaged in a conflict that could otherwise escalate and become quite dangerous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll surprise those in control by doing things in such a wildly independent manner. Don't be irresponsible, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Someone in the know has his or her eye on you, and before the day is out, you can benefit in ways you may not have imagined.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You have a good reason to pick up the pace and finish not one, not two, but at least three projects simultaneously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Don't fool yourself into thinking recent decisions and behavior have been strictly business. There's a personal element at play.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

What begins as an error can actually prove beneficial to you in the end; eventually someone in charge will interpret it most creatively.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Now is a good time to act decisively, even if you're only fooling someone else into thinking that you're being decisive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may want to keep certain information to yourself for the time being, until you understand just how others might use it.

OTHER CULTURES

In England, This Would Be Like Firing J.Lo From 'Idol'

Cheryl Cole has been offered her "X-Factor" judge job back, according to the Hollywood Reporter. The British pop star was dropped from the show in late May for unknown reasons.

Rumors that her accent is too heavy and that she lacked chemistry with Paula Abdul went unconfirmed. Cole is expected back on the "X-Factor" set this week. (EXPRESS)

POOR PLANNING

Centuries From Now, When He Is Worshipped as a God, Finding This Stuff Again Is Going to Be a Real Hassle

Larry Hagman auctioned off many of his personal valuables Saturday in Beverly Hills, Calif. A silver saddle sold for $80,000. Other big sales included a portrait of "Dallas" co-star Jim Davis for more than $38,000 and a replica bottle from "I Dream of Jeannie" that brought in more than $10,000. (AP)

Future archaeologists really wish Larry had just been entombed with this crap.

Victims

Who Does, Really?

Tiger Woods alum Rachel Uchitel told TMZ.com that a "very high-profile journalist" contacted her claiming knowledge of an affair between Uchitel and Arnold Schwarzenegger. "I've never met Arnold," she said. "I don't like his movies." (EXPRESS)

REAL ESTATE

That's So ... Cheap?

The Bradfield Sutton, England, home where Kate, Pippa and James Middleton spent part of their childhoods was sold at auction for about $800,000 Friday. The new owners, two schoolteachers, Emma Appleby and Tom Wyatt, who told the Daily Mail, "the Middleton factor did not influence us at all, and we had no idea at first. We were attracted to the lovely village, lovely house, good primary school and being near friends." (EXPRESS)

ONLY EXPLANATION

Patti Was Upset. Her Evil Twin Had Escaped AGAIN.

A West Point cadet is suing Patti LaBelle, saying she ordered her bodyguards to beat him up as he waited for a ride home outside a Houston airport terminal on March 11. Richard King's lawsuit says LaBelle lowered a window of her limousine and commanded her three bodyguards to attack King because he was standing too close to her luggage. (AP)

"Sex is the sexiest word in the English language. Just the word is sexy to me."

— CAMERON DIAZ AND ALEX RODRIGUEZ HAVE REPORTEDLY SPLIT. "WE BREAK UP; WE MOVE ON," SHE TOLD BRITAIN'S NEWS OF THE WORLD. SHE ALSO SAID THE ABOVE.
